

ABSTRACT

An electrode assembly for solid oxide fuel cells includes an electrolyte member defining a cathode side and an anode side and having an active area and an edge portion; cathode disposed on the cathode side; an anode disposed on the anode side; and at least one electrolyte support member positioned adjacent to the edge portion of the electrolyte and having an opening positioned over at least a portion of the active area.